

Surveys: Webster is top CT workplace

The Hartford Courant and Hearst Connecticut Media have named Webster among the state's Top Workplaces for 2017 based on annual surveys that measures employee satisfaction.

Webster was one of 60 companies to make the Hartford Courant list in greater Hartford, and one of just 45 companies to be named a top workplace in Fairfield, Litchfield, and New Haven counties as part of the Hearst survey.

Workplace Dynamics, LLC, a leading research firm that specializes in organizational health and workplace improvement, conducts the survey yearly with selected organizations, companies, and businesses. Factors contributing to employee satisfaction include clear company direction, worker appreciation, and potential for growth.

These honors follow Webster being named in May 2017 as one of the top midsize employers nationwide, including recognition in the banking and financial services category, according to Forbes' "America's Best Employers of 2017."

Webster was also honored as one of the "most reputable banks" in the country as part of the 2017 Survey of Bank Reputations, earning the highest score of any Northeast-based bank and ranking seventh overall in the United States.

"Webster is committed to creating an environment that is conducive to employee satisfaction and positive banker experiences," said Bernard Garrigues, executive vice president, chief human resources officer. "One of our objectives is to continuously build a workplace where bankers can excel in their jobs, develop new skills and achieve their career aspirations."

In both Connecticut top workplace surveys, Webster won in the "large company" category. In the Hartford area survey, that included businesses with more than 500 employees. In the Hearst survey, it included companies with more than 400 employees.
